Indian Roses Blanket - Aqua Version

My Indian Roses blanket design was inspired by a trip to Mysore, India where I came across some lovely vintage ceramic tiles that featured pretty roses at the centre. The original design was worked using yarns from the West Yorkshire Spinners range, some of which are now discontinued, but you can use any DK weight yarn so long as it crochets to the same tension and is equal in length.

The yarns from West Yorkshire Spinners are fabulous and as they now have lots of shades in their gorgeous ColourLab DK range I have worked a couple of new sample motifs of the design as alternatives to the original. To work through this Aqua version, you will need the original pattern, which you can purchase either as a paper or a download copy, plus this yarn substitution document. You will need to refer to the original pattern for measurements, equipment needed and the pattern notes.

MATERIALS

West Yorkshire Spinners ColourLab DK

100% British Wool

225m (245yds) per 100g ball

 Deep Teal (716)	5 balls
 Aqua Green (705)	4 balls
 Natural Cream (010)	2 balls
 Citrus Yellow (229)	1 ball
 Crimson Red (556)	1 ball
 Electric Blue (364)	1 ball*
 Pear Green (186)	1 ball
 Zesty Orange (476)	1 ball

West Yorkshire Spinners Bo Peep DK

52% Falkland Wool 48% Nylon

112m (122yds) per 50g ball

 Pumpkin (276)	2 balls*
---	----------

Please note that yarn amounts are approximate and are based on this order of substituting yarn and on using the correct tension.

* We think yarn usage on these 2 yarn shades may be tight if you make the full-size blanket so you might want to add in an extra ball of each.
